Watermark's Annapolis Explorers Day Camp Offers Students a Hands-On Adventure When School Is Out

[ANNAPOLIS, Md.] Families looking for an engaging way to keep children active, curious and learning when school is not in session can turn to Watermark's Annapolis Explorers Day Camp, a full-day camp experience designed for students in grades 1–4.

Registration is now open for the following Schools Out Camp dates: September 21, October 26, November 3, and April 5, 2027.

Through a combination of hands-on activities, field trips and interactive exploration, Annapolis Explorers Day Camp invites young explorers to discover the history, culture and natural environment of Annapolis in a fun and memorable setting.

Campers will step into the past through immersive colonial history experiences, explore the Chesapeake Bay through STEM and environmental activities, and take part in crafts, cruising adventures and other hands-on activities. Experienced educators and local guides help bring each experience to life, encouraging campers to ask questions, make discoveries and see Annapolis from a whole new perspective.

"Schools Out Camp is designed to make days off from school an opportunity for adventure and discovery," said Camp Director Genesis Foley. "We want campers to have fun while also connecting with the history, waterways, and culture that make Annapolis such a special place to explore."
